

FRAID KNOT

Black is the Color (of my true love's hair) (traditional)

None of the band had ever heard this song before and Byron played it one night during sound-check for a show. We all just fell in on it and instantly loved it. I think we played it that night live for the first time if memory serves. This is my personal favorite track off Pint.

GW

Black is the Color held a lot of personal attraction to me. Even though it's not an unhappy song, it has a really dark, melancholy vibe to it which I find really emotional. This is one of my favorite live tracks to play.
