Fraid Knot | A Pint O' Trad

Following the successful reception of Fraid Knot's debut CD (Hoist the Sails) the band spent the next few years playing shows across Canada from British Columbia to Nunavut. When Fraid Knot decided it was time to start recording their second album, they took a slight departure from the rockier, edgier "Hoist" and paid tribute to the traditional music that has always inspired the band. Originally intended to be an album comprised entirely of cover songs, one original managed to sneak its way onto the recording due to the fact it fit stylistically. The gentle ballad, "Meet Me Tonight" has proven to be the unofficial single from the album, being embraced by both media and fans alike. Other highlights include the band's unique interpretations of such Scottish classics as "Marie's Wedding", the soulful "Black is the Color" and the uptempo, kilt raising anthem, "Donald Where's Your Trousers?" "A Pint O' Trad" is a tastefully performed compilation of tried and true Celtic classics. Fraid Knot's modern but respectful renditions of these timeless melodies are sure to appeal to listeners from all walks of life.
