

Seagull's Cry (Eddy/Webster)

Byron and I were doing one of our writing sessions for the 1st album. He said he had one more that he didn't think was any good and he quickly played me this song for the first time. I thought it was awesome! We tore it down and rebuilt it as far as progressions, melody lines and a few word changes here and there but it became what is to date my favorite song we've ever done. I've heard a lot of people say that about this song actually and I wish we did it live. Maybe we should start???

GW

This song came to me one morning while walking from the train station in downtown Calgary to work. It was a foggy morning and as I was passing a McDonalds there were seagulls flying around and singing out. With the mist/fog being so thick you really couldn't see the buildings, just the fog and seagulls, which instantly took me back to those foggy mornings back home. By the time I arrived at work 10 minutes later I had the first two verses and course written. The warm summer evenings out on the pier, is a reference to catching Connors off my grandfather warf in North Hr. P.Bay and listening to the older men tell stories of when they were younger, some days that is all I got were the stories, which I guess is worth a lot more than a Conner.

BE