

FRAID KNOT

South Australia (Traditional)

This has been a crowd favorite from day one for this band. When I took over for Lane Morris I inherited the bass part of this song (Lane used to flip around instruments even more than I do). I used to play "lead bass" on this song which is wrong on so many levels... When Ed joined he gave me one of his "that's nae gonna happen" looks and played a real bass line. I play the bass line on the guitar to this day. My ears ring for days after this one if Lael's feeling like a clubber.

A song we definitely made our own. We've been doing this one since the band's inception in 2000 but its evolved somewhat. There've been some really good versions of this done by different groups as well but I do really like ours. This one got some radio play in Australia which is pretty cool.
